Kewpie sees results from its halal efforts

Kewpie’s Malaysia subsidiary is going all out to promote its halal products in the local market, in line with the country’s aim to boost its halal economy, which is forecast to grow at an average of 10 percent annually until 2020, according to the Malaysian Halal Industry Association (MAHA).

Nevertheless, the company is facing challenges because Malaysia’s halal regulator, the Ministry of Islamic Development Malaysia (MOHD), has made it clear that Kewpie closely followed the requirements laid out by MOHD.

"We started with a modest scale and our efforts have contributed greatly to our growth in Malaysia," said Tatsuo Kabesu, president of Kewpie Malaysia Sdn. Bhd., which was established in 2009.

Kabesu said that Kewpie’s most popular products are its mayonnaise dressings and mayonnaise-based sauce “Sauce Cream” as well as its mayonnaise in bottles.

The company, which has a factory in Malaysia, has been helping to promote halal awareness among Muslim consumers in the country. The company has helped to spread the knowledge of halal awareness to the religious sector.

Science park draws investors across a variety of fields

Malaysia continues to be an attractive destination for foreign investment from around the world, especially Japan. According to the latest Japan Times report, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, direct investment from Japan into the country reached $5.8 billion in 2017 and initiatives such as the Malaysia Trade and Investment Promotion Agency (MATRADE) have been helping smooth the way for Japanese companies looking to set up shop in the Southeast Asian nation.

KHTP is a strategic national economic development located in northern Malaysia in the state of Kedah, which includes the resort island of Langkawi and southern Thailand. KHTP is partially funded by the federal government and administered by the Kedah state government. Since its opening as Malaysia’s first high-technology park in 1996 and welcoming its first investor, the U.S.-based computer technology giant Intel Corp., KHTP has attracted a wealth of multinational industrial tenants from German Hi-Tech, Infineon Technologies AG, Fujitsu Limited, Panasonic, Facets Malaysia, and Israeli companies such as Matra Cpe, Fujitsu Electromechanics Malaysia, and Panasonic Memory Technology. Nevertheless, KHTP, which is managed by KHTP, a wholly owned subsidiary of the Malaysian Technology Development Corp. (MTDC), has developed and managed KHTP as a successful case study in high-tech industrial parks. Careful planning of the project by the government has helped create a development that balances work, life and leisure for Japanese companies, making it the perfect environment for Japanese companies.

Japanese companies have been using KHTP as a gateway to the Asia-Pacific region. The park is equipped with state-of-the-art facilities, with emphasis on technology. Various facilities and activities are available for use by companies, including research and development laboratories, business centers, and office spaces. These spaces can be rented by companies, so they can continue their business activities with minimal disruption. Companies that offer services to park tenants are able to use the office space, providing visibility and ease of access. Additionally, at least 15 percent of the company’s workforce should be Japanese, which adds to the incentives to invest in KHTP.

KHTP is further proof that it is a secure and stable environment with complete support from local and federal governments.
