China’s business hub still leads race

Japan’s engineering conglomerate Mitsubishi Corp. has experienced much success in China because of its research efforts to promote the principles of good corporate citizenship. Stifft, partners and international business leaders at the 3S conference at the Shanghai International Convention Center.

Mitsubishi's commitment to China's economic development is reflected in its company's aggressive efforts to build partnerships with local businesses. The firm has invested heavily in infrastructure projects and has established joint ventures with local companies.

The company's success in China has been attributed to its proactive approach to business development and its ability to adapt to the rapidly changing business environment. Mitsubishi has partnered with a wide range of local businesses, from small-scale enterprises to large multinational corporations, in order to strengthen its presence in the Chinese market.

In addition to its partnerships, Mitsubishi has also been active in promoting good corporate citizenship in China. The company has made a significant commitment to environmental sustainability, social responsibility, and community engagement, which has helped to establish its reputation as a trusted and respected business partner in China.

Mitsubishi's continued success in China demonstrates its commitment to building long-term relationships with local businesses, fostering innovation and growth, and contributing to the development of the Chinese economy. The company's future success in China will depend on its ability to adapt to changing market conditions and continue to strengthen its partnerships with local businesses.
Teijin Group’s operations in China have huge impact on the industry worldwide

Compared to 30 years ago, China’s textile industry has become a major global player, and today it’s one of the world’s largest economies. This growth is due to the development of China’s textile industry, which has evolved from Japan’s first major textile manufacturer to a highly diversified multinational company with a wide range of business interests. China’s textile industry has seen a significant expansion in recent years, and today it is one of the world’s largest producers of textiles and apparel.

Teijin Group’s R&D centers in China are also a source of pride for the company’s partnership with the Shanghai Municipal Government since 1997. The company’s “total textile bases” in Nantong and Qindao have adopted Toray Japan’s total integrated supply chain management model, which will be its key strategy for further expansion.

Chinese society

In China, Toray Industries China is known for its quality fiber and fibers and water treatment membranes. In 1997, it opened its first fiber factory in China, which has since become the company’s largest fiber production facility. The company’s Shanghai R&D center has been a key player in the development of new materials and technologies, and it has been a driving force in the innovation of China’s textile industry.

Delivering sound, vision, and soul

With a well-localized and half-Japanese with a vested benefit of the company also has a personal significance. As the son of Chinese émigrés living in Japan, the company executive considers himself half-Chinese and considers it his duty to contribute to the advancement of China. I feel proud that Teiyu-China can play a role in China’s continuing development.”

Yakult contributes to people’s health and wellbeing around the world

Global leader focuses on growth

Innovation by chemistry

Better Environment, Better Life

Recognizing that an enterprise cannot continue to exist without the support of local communities, Mitsubishi Corporation is committed to working closely with them to contribute to the local community and the environment.