Today’s cutting-edge fabrics made by machines designed in Taiwan and manufactured overseas. Pat Long is among the world’s top three manufacturers of cutting-edge machines. “We have a global workforce of over 400. The main plant, along with our subsidiaries, such as Pat Long (Hebei) Manufacturing in China and Pat Long (Indonesia) located in the recently acquired Yogyakarta, Pat Long LC, are the dynamic force behind Pat Long’s success in manufacturing our state-of-the-art cutting-edge machines,” notes Gao. “As a labor cost is low in China, Pat Long has begun exporting its entire line of computerized flat knitting machines to the mainland. The main thing that labor costs are considerably lower here, and now that is a big demand for this machine in production lines,” Wang explains.

Pat Long exports growth of between 35 and 40 percent, with a significant proportion coming from Asian markets, as opposed to domestic, automotive, apparel, house, domestic appliances, apparel, health, care and leisure. “We have many years of experience. We are dedicated to manufacturing innovative textile machinery for new fibers and designs. The size and innovation is so great, especially in the Fabless specialty, design-to—design machine that produces more versatile and dynamic consumer electronics. The new product will be released at the latest ISPO trade fair in Germany. Meanwhile, UCC is also looking to grow its global market share as a part of its growth strategy. ‘The main force for Japan will be our textile business.” We want to receive more technical know-how from Japan because the quality of their products is so high, says Tatsuo Hara, general manager of the textile division, UCC Developed Co Ltd as the textile division that used in luggage, automotive production and dyestuff production.

Passion powers growth for Yokogawa Taiwan

For Japanese companies, Taiwan has become a profitable and valuable location for overseas expansion. Aside from its gross—industrial credentials with Japan, the country boasts a diverse economy and cutting—edge infrastructure, and serves as an ideal bridgehead for companies looking to tap into South—East Asia.

Since entering the Taiwanese market 45 years ago, Yokogawa Taiwan operates its own sales and service network and produces key products, including control systems and industrial—friendly work facilities. Yokogawa Taiwan has always been committed to delivering the best possible products and services to its customers.

Yokogawa Taiwan President and Managing Director Charles C. Wang says the company is well—equipped, passionate and dedicated to providing superior, customer—friendly work facilities.

"We are determined to increase our customer base and to continue to expand our network of sales and service centers,” says Wang. "Our customers are important to us and we are very committed to understanding their needs and expectations. In order to strengthen the competitiveness of our products and services, Yokogawa believes that Taiwan has become a more suitable place for foreign—investment, making up more than 50 percent of the total, followed by Japan and China.

As a member of the Yokogawa group, the company aims to continue to innovate by offering the best quality products, services and solutions. Yokogawa believes that Taiwan has become safer and more prosperous because of its own resources.
