Taiwan's official carrier soars to new heights on its 55th anniversary

F ounded in 1959, China Airlines (CAL) is Taiwan's largest airline, with more than 11,000 operating domestic and international flights. It offers passengers access to an extensive global network of more than 3,500 destinations in 174 countries. China Airlines has been named the “World's Best Airline” by US-based Global Traveler magazine in 2015 and also received the “Most Improved Airline” award from Skytrax in 2013. It has also achieved top rankings in Taiwan, according to Management Magazine’s Consumer Brand Survey. For the past 5 years, China Airlines has consistently been ranked among the first three most customer-friendly airlines in Taiwan for its in-flight service, on-time performance and value for money. CAL’s main hub is the Taiwan Taoyuan International Airport, the world's fourth-busiest airport. The airline offers 128 weekly flights to 13 destinations in 178 countries.

In 2014, China Airlines offered passenger access to an extensive global network of more than 3,500 destinations in 174 countries. The airline has consistently been ranked among the first three most customer-friendly airlines in Taiwan for its in-flight service, on-time performance and value for money. CAL’s main hub is the Taiwan Taoyuan International Airport, the world's fourth-busiest airport. The airline offers 128 weekly flights to 13 destinations in 178 countries.

In 2014, China Airlines offered passenger access to an extensive global network of more than 3,500 destinations in 174 countries. The airline has consistently been ranked among the first three most customer-friendly airlines in Taiwan for its in-flight service, on-time performance and value for money. CAL’s main hub is the Taiwan Taoyuan International Airport, the world's fourth-busiest airport. The airline offers 128 weekly flights to 13 destinations in 178 countries.

Taiwanese, Japanese and mainland Chinese enterprises can still find numerous opportunities to invest in emerging markets. Together, our individual strengths and collaborative efforts can effectively improve our leading position and contribute to a better future.

Taiwanese, Japanese and mainland Chinese enterprises can still find numerous opportunities to invest in emerging markets. Together, our individual strengths and collaborative efforts can effectively improve our leading position and contribute to a better future.

Taiwanese, Japanese and mainland Chinese enterprises can still find numerous opportunities to invest in emerging markets. Together, our individual strengths and collaborative efforts can effectively improve our leading position and contribute to a better future.

Taiwanese, Japanese and mainland Chinese enterprises can still find numerous opportunities to invest in emerging markets. Together, our individual strengths and collaborative efforts can effectively improve our leading position and contribute to a better future.
I

is widely agreed that the Ma administration’s economic legacy—

the Economic Cooperation Framework Agreement (ECFA) between Taiwan and China in 2010—has added a new dimension to globalization.

But before that, business relations between companies in mainland China and Taiwan had already been established. ECFA solidified the cross-Strait link, the financial world, academia, and politics. The result: Sino-Japanese joint ventures have been set up with such高速的 growth in just the past five years.

In 2013, a new, advantageous relationship came into play. ECFA took effect in January 2010, and on September 11, 2011, Paul Yang (3rd from left) spoke at CDFH Investor Day on Sept. 11, 2013.

Japan's ideal partner in mainland China and ASEAN

Sino-Japan Chemical (SJC) was established in 1970—a joint venture between Japan Chemical & Pharmaceuticals and China Chemical & Pharmaceuticals. Since then, it has continued to grow and prosper, contributing significantly to the cross-Straits link. The financial institution, able to pursue mutual interests, has been the leading driver of SJC's growth. The company has also recently acquired KGI Securities, a significant milestone for SJC in its strategy to create a consistent supply chain along the whole FVC establishment infrastructure. This ideal synergy was behind SJC's success in the markets it serves.

With the boom of its private equity business in China and Southeast Asia, SJC has been able to maintain its profitable performance. SJC has a revenue of 1.27 billion yen, and in the last three years, the company has achieved record profits.

From domestic leader to global supplier: a Japan-Taiwan success story

SJC was established in 1970—a joint venture between Japan Chemical & Pharmaceticals and China Chemical & Pharmaceuticals. Since then, it has continued to grow and prosper, contributing significantly to the cross-Straits link. The financial institution, able to pursue mutual interests, has been the leading driver of SJC's growth. The company has also recently acquired KGI Securities, a significant milestone for SJC in its strategy to create a consistent supply chain along the whole FVC establishment infrastructure. This ideal synergy was behind SJC's success in the markets it serves.

With the boom of its private equity business in China and Southeast Asia, SJC has been able to maintain its profitable performance. SJC has a revenue of 1.27 billion yen, and in the last three years, the company has achieved record profits. In addition, SJC is also looking into extending its business to Japan and Taiwan, two regions that are pointing to even better performance in the near future. SJC aims to achieve even better performance in the near future.
Taiwan Business Report

Taiwan’s official carrier soars to new heights on its 55th anniversary

Taiwan’s official carrier, China Airlines, is celebrating its 55th anniversary this year. The carrier has been in operation since 1962 and is proud of its long-standing commitment to the island’s aviation industry. In honor of this milestone, the airline has launched a series of special flights, including an inaugural flight to New York City, which commemorates the 101st anniversary of the Chinese Civil Aviation Administration.

In addition to these special flights, China Airlines has also introduced new in-flight services and amenities to enhance the travel experience for its passengers. The airline has invested in state-of-the-art aircraft and has introduced new in-flight entertainment systems, including high-definition screens and streaming services.

China Airlines has also been proactive in responding to the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic. The airline has implemented rigorous health and safety protocols to ensure the safety of its passengers and crew. These measures include mandatory temperature checks, compulsory mask-wearing, and enhanced cleaning protocols.

Looking ahead, China Airlines is committed to further expanding its network and improving its services. The airline has plans to introduce new destinations and to enhance its existing routes. Additionally, the carrier is focused on sustainability and has set ambitious targets to reduce its carbon footprint.

With its strong track record and commitment to excellence, China Airlines is well-positioned to continue its legacy of excellence and innovation in the aviation industry. The airline’s 55th anniversary is a significant milestone in its history, and it is a testament to the commitment of its employees and its dedication to serving the passengers of Taiwan and the world.