The Islands’ geographical location and world-leading approach to innovative industries, such as financial services, gaming and blockchain, make it the ideal base for investors looking to make the most of this year’s EU-Japan Economic Partnership Agreement.

The signing of the EU-Japan Economic Partnership Agreement has turned the attention of investors towards Malta, a country intent on “leading the way” in every sector from birth to fruition, way ahead of many other countries, “We put experts and the best legal minds together and take action,” said Minister of Finance Edward Scicluna. “Our role is to build on that. If we look at our recent virtual asset framework, we have understood and met from the start of any project needs. It is equally concerned with the long-term success of any project and the success of our country.”

“Malta offers stability in its economy, legislation and social services, gaming and, most recently, blockchain. It is equally concerned with the long-term success of any project and the success of our country,” said Minister of Finance Edward Scicluna. “Our role is to build on that. Financial services guardian MFSA protects players

As the single regulator for all financial services activities in the country, the Malta Financial Services Authority is a pivotal figure in the fast-growing sector, working around the clock to ensure companies comply with strict legislation.

In meeting with the Prime Minister, Minister for Gozo, the MFSA's Chair, Justyne Caruana, explained.

The ferries are also increasingly used for work travel, as Gozo's rejuvenation extends far beyond tourism. In addition, the island's public transport network has been improved and is now more user-friendly.

The MFSA is, as of Nov. 1, 2018, regulating crypto-assets. We must also increase awareness and public understanding in this area.

The MFSA is one of the most respected financial regulators in the world.

Deteriorating Malta’s skylines, the newly renovated Cittadella contains a number of historic buildings, including a baroque cathedral.

Given our size, politicians and policymakers have a responsibility to govern for the long term, explained Caruana.
